MOSKO MOTO RECKLESS 80L LUGGAGE SYSTEM

Mosko Moto's Reckless 80L is a modular soft luggage system designed for minimalist off-road riding, camping and international fly-to-ride trips. The Washington-based company, which sells direct to riders, reimagined the traditional three-bag organization and packing system used on touring bikes, creating an easily accessible system that works without side pannier racks mounted to the bike. That keeps the weight down and saves on cost. The 80L features a removable map and document pocket, a rear-fueling hole, a beavertail stash space for extra storage and expansion, two large external rear pockets, three MOLLE panels allowing quick attachment of MOLLE accessories, removable connection straps for field repair after a crash, two side compression straps, and more. It's $625, with more luggage solutions available; www.moskomoto.com.

SCORPION EXHAUSTS FROM MOTO MACHINES

Moto Machines, importer and distributor of premium motorcycle accessories, has added Scorpion Exhausts to its line-up of brands. Handcrafted in England near the Donington Park race circuit, Scorpion Exhausts products are known for their top-quality design and construction. Moto Machines' inventory includes Scorpion Exhausts' new Red Power muffler series. A shorter circular muffler, this exhaust features a machined billet end-cap and laser engraved logo and is available in brushed stainless steel, matte black ceramic, and satin titanium finishes. Moto Machines offers in-stock accessories for more than 700 bike models to help riders build the ultimate bike. For details on products and pricing, see www.motomachines.com.

RUKKA M-CLIMA VEST

Rukka's new M-Clima Vest is the first electric cooling vest for motorcyclists, but it's also a multiseason accessory because it can keep you warm in winter. The cooling system has a waist-mounted blower unit that pushes air inside the system, which decreases skin surface temperature. The vest is powered by the bike's battery, so the cooling effect lasts throughout your ride. The cooling system can also provide up to two hours of off-bike cooling. The vest's heating system uses silicone semi-conductive panels that heat up, warming the rider's torso. The rider controls the system with a remote control unit that can be attached to a jacket's zipper pull. The climate-control vest is lightweight and can be worn under standard protective apparel. $1,200 at dealers and online retailers; www.rukka.com.

ENGINE ICE PRODUCTS

Whether you're traveling around the corner or around the world, you can count on Engine Ice to keep your motorcycle running cooler. Made from biodegradable and nontoxic propylene glycol, the coolant antifreeze is engineered to help maintain operating temperatures at an optimum level, which helps prevent power loss from excess heat. The brand's Helmet Renew is designed to clean and refresh your hard-to-wash gear—helmets, knee pads, boots, and more—while the new Plastic Shine spray leaves behind a hard-shell protective finish that repels mud and moisture and prevents bugs from sticking. Available at powersports dealers worldwide; www.engineice.com.

KATE'S REAL FOOD BARS

Kate's Real Food bars are the perfect on-the-go energy source, easy to tuck into your jacket pocket or tankbag. Made with real, organic, non-GMO ingredients and sweetened with organic honey, the bars are gluten-free and have 6 to 8 grams of protein. They come in six varieties: peanut butter and dark chocolate; peanut butter and milk chocolate; dark chocolate, cherry, and almond; peanut butter, hemp, and flax; lemon and coconut; and sweet mango and tropical coconut. Kate's is committed to clean ingredients and great taste. The bars even have a great-taste money-back guarantee. They're available at a variety of sports and outdoors shops and online ($2.99 per bar or $34.99 for a box of 12); www.katesrealfood.com.
